

Aviation Core Skills

The Aviation Core Skills qualification is aimed at giving trainees the generic skills required for working within an aviation environment at an introductory level. The qualification will be aimed at Level 3 requirements, and will contain strands for some specific roles within aviation.

The qualification is currently in the draft stage, and as such is not available for use as yet. We are aiming to get the draft approved by industry by June 2008, and will keep any updates on the progress of the qualification posted here.
